

PROGRAM IN EUROPEAN CULTURAL STUDIES

RETHINKING THE CRITIQUE OF VIOLENCE/POWER

We are mostly familiar with leading 20th century critiques of violence and power—Walter Benjamin's for instance, or Foucault's. But can they serve us in this turmoil of the 21st century? Is it time to rethink or develop new critiques of violence and power in the age of contested facts? Perhaps it is time to think hard about this question.

Bernard E. Harcourt

(Columbia University; EHESS, Paris; Institute for Advanced Study)

March 29, 2017

4:30 • 106 McCormick Hall

This event is free and open to the public.

Council of the Humanities

 PRINCETON UNIVERSITY